An Intentional Junction of Design.

Bridge & Elliott acknowledges the past while looking to the future, expressing its heritage context in contemporary ways. The six-storey form creates a distinctive sense of arrival, featuring a variety of dimensions, deep setbacks on corners, canopy overhangs, a light colour palette, and a mixture of natural materials. A striking saw-tooth roofline is a modern nod to the local fishing history.

At street level, the building is enveloped with retail spaces and gathering spots that will be alive with community, continuing the Village's vibrant social fabric well into the future.

Homes Showcasing a Timeless Design Aesthetic.

True livability is a sense of ease. Interiors by Portico Design Group capture this by creating an experience akin to single-family living — a home with versatility and effortless flow. Scandinavian-influenced spaces are bright and open, efficiently designed for everyday living and entertaining. Enjoy the flexibility and pleasure of hosting family meals, special occasions, or a spontaneous brunch.

In the heart of the home, the kitchen, thoughtful details are intended to elevate functionality and style. A large island anchors the space in most homes, and is complemented by an abundance of storage solutions, full-size Fisher & Paykel appliances, a high-arc faucet, and striking brushed nickel finishes. It's an environment that naturally attracts casual dining and inspired cooking.

This sophisticated level of design continues to the primary bedroom and ensuite, where tranquility is unmistakable. Large walk-in closets in select homes provide plenty of space for wardrobes. Efficiency and elegance are woven together in ensuites, where a wood-tone vanity is paired with a convenient medicine cabinet — and some homes feature double sinks. A shower with both a large showerhead and hand spray invites you to unwind day or night. Experience enhanced living in every moment.

Honouring the Past, Building a Future.

At Headwater, we are dedicated to forward-thinking design while honoring the existing heritage of neighborhoods and culture. As a trusted developer and landlord, we believe that homes are more than just places to live — they are the heart of thriving communities. Beyond bricks and mortar, we are committed to supporting the areas we serve through collaborative partnerships, community engagement initiatives, and sustainable development practices.
